Good morning Year 2! I hope you all had a lovely weekend and managed to get out despite all the rain! I've been really impressed with the work I've seen for our new 'Scented Garden' topic so far - please remember to keep sending it to me!

Here are your tasks for Monday

The Scented Garden

Science - our five senses

This week we are going to be using our senses to explore our gardens. Today we are going to remind ourselves about our five senses. Watch this video <https://www.bbc.co.uk/bitesize/topics/z9yycdm/articles/zxy987h> then we are going to think about how we use our different senses to understand the world around us. I would like you to think about 2 things you can see, smell, feel and hear inside your house then do the same outside in the garden. Inside you might hear the television but outside you might hear the noise of a car going past. There is a sheet for you to fill in or copy into your home learning book on the next slide.

English

This week we are going to be doing some creative writing and making our own miniature book.

Watch this video of 'The Gruffalo' illustrator Axel Scheffler reading a new story he has written about a squirrel called Fipsy <https://www.bl.uk/childrens-books/activities/minature-books-by-your-favourite-authors>

We are going to create our own story about a fictional character who, like Fipsy, is learning at home. Imagine yourself as a fictional animal character and create a mind map with your character's name in the middle and all the things they have been doing at home around the outside. These only need be notes for today (think about all the home learning activities we have done since school closed)

Maths

This week we are moving on to adding and subtracting 2-digit numbers in Maths. It's been a little while since we have done this so it might be helpful to look back in your home learning book to remind yourself. We are working on Summer Term - Week 4 w/c 11th May focusing on 'Adding and Subtracting Tens' today. Please note the worksheets and answer sheets are no longer freely available to download from the White Rose website so these will be uploaded onto the home learning page as separate documents. You can find the video lesson here:
