

Magnetic Poles

We have been learning about forces and magnetism this half-term. Today, we learned that magnets have a north and south pole. We also observed how magnets can attract or repel each other, depending on which direction they were facing!