

We spent an afternoon learning about prehistoric cave paintings that have survived for thousands of years, and how our ancestors would make their own paint. Then we had a go at making our own prehistoric paint to create a backing for our "Tribal Tales" display!

"It was hard to make the paint because it takes a long time to grind it in to a powder!"
- Abi

We used stones to grind up charcoal, mud, and ash to create different colours. Then we mixed it with water to create paint!

Some materials were much easier to use than others!
